Today the calling of educating has turned out to be very testing. Instructors are relied upon to be both viable educators and specialists. Being a teacher isn't just about sharing information; it is tied in with ensuring that students really incorporate this information and determine learning out of it. Any showing that does not bring about successful learning is pointless. Accordingly, to be a powerful instructor, one should have the capacity to convey the space learning utilizing the most reasonable academic devices. For this, each educator needs to consistently redesign himself/herself by participating in look into.

A Faculty Development Programme was organized from 5th May to 11th May, 2018 at Vidyalkar School of Information Technology. This was a six-day Faculty Development Programme where various topics related to “Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles” were discussed in detail by eminent educationists and a beneficial academic environment was experienced by the participants.

Activity Name: FDP on Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles
Date: 5th to 11th May 2018 Time: 10 AM to 4 PM

The FDP aims to provide opportunities to faculty members and research scholars to enrich their teaching skill and to develop the knowledge of participants in their relevant field for inculcating learning values in students and guiding and monitoring their progress.

The FDP was attended by 30 participants from faculty members of Information Technology, Commerce, Management and Communication Department. The event was coordinated by Prof. Ashwini Koyande. While designing the structure of the programme it was kept in mind that there are going to be people from different background so that maximum can be benefitted out of it.

INAUGURAL SESSION:

The FDP was begun on fifth May, 2018 where the Speakers were invited by the Principal Dr. Rohini Kelkar, Vice Principals Prof. Vijay Gawde and Prof. Asif Rampurawla, Adjunct Faculty Chandrahas Deshpande and Makarand Deshpande. The main session was on the theme Teacher's part as a Mentor and the visitor speaker was Dr. Manoj Bhatvadekar, M.D., D.P. M., Consulting Psychiatrist.

Principal Dr. Rohini Kelkar welcomed Dr. Manoj Bhatvadekar and participants. She insisted on the skills and knowledge of the faculties required to make the teaching learning effective.

Day 1 (5th May 2018) : The Role of a teacher as a Mentor

The first session started with the introduction of the resource person by Prof. Ranjit Singh

Activity Name: FDP on Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles

Date: 5th May 2018 Time: 10 AM to 4 PM

Anand. Dr. Manoj Bhatvadekar has delivered keynote address on Teacher's part as a Mentor. His session truly justified the quote of Lailah Gifty Akita, "Every great achiever is inspired by a great mentor." "Every individual must be given the opportunity to unearth his/her highest potential." Dr. Manoj Bhatvadekar talked about different roles of a teacher as a mentor during the course of his/her mentoring relationship. A teacher has to act as a sounding board for ideas/concerns into possible opportunities and provide support on personal issues, if appropriate. The mentor has to be empathetic towards his/her mentee. Any form of communication between a mentor and a mentee has to be a two-way process for which the mentor has to look on the reflection of his/her own personality and identify resources to help mentee enhance personal development and expand the mentee's network of contacts.

To make the participants understand the importance of right mentoring, a role play on chosen situations was performed by each participant to get a clear idea about counselling and guiding. While performing different roles on situations, participants also realized that when appropriate, playing devil's advocate to help mentee think through important decisions and strategies is equally necessary.

The session was very much informative. He made the session interactive and based on various examples for better understanding of the academicians. Last but not the least when the house was open for questions the academicians were keen to ask and with the same level of enthusiasm they were justifiably answered by Dr. Manoj Bhatvadekar. The session was ended with the vote of thanks given by Dr. Pashmeen Kaur Anand.

Day 2 (7th May 2018) : The Role of a Teacher as an Effective Presenter and Communicator

In the second session, resource person Mr. Pramod Palekar started his discussion with the concept of identifying one's own personality while giving presentations and listening to others. Mr. Pramod Palekar is the Managing Director & Principal Faculty of Sumances Consultrainers Pvt. Ltd. The introduction of Mr. Pramod Palekar given by Prof. Ranjit Singh Anand highlighted on his achievements as a trainer in the areas of:

- Speech Communication
- Team Building
- Business Presentation Skills
- Corporate Etiquette
- Interpersonal Communication
- Time Management
- Positive Thinking and Relationship Management

The session started with each participant's introduction to build an initial bonding between the trainer and the participants. To make the session much more interactive, the introduction was videotaped to see oneself and analyze different aspects of Body Language and Oratory Skills. Terms like Gravity, Terminus, Fig Leave posture in relation to one's posture has been discussed while giving the feedback after the introduction. The topic, "Effective Presentation" not only dealt with the rules of presentation but also the various other requirements attached with presentation were been discussed in an interactive session. Mr. Pramod Palekar mentioned in his address that listening also is a pivotal part of every presentation when it comes to effectiveness of one's communication. The passion must be reflected which will eventually build a connection with the audience. Continuing with the discussion, he added that your presentation needs to be built around what your audience is going to get out of the presentation that means you also need to remain focused on your audience's response, and react to that.

The most important thing Dr. Pramod Palekar has mentioned while preparing and delivering the presentation is to think out of the box. As there are many rules which can act as a prejudice that eventually might become a barrier to make a presentation not getting the desired output. He kept on adding on the importance of accepting challenges in terms of introducing some innovative ideas to keep on trying to give something new to the audience.

Third session was a continuation of the importance of effectiveness in communication techniques. Participants also watched themselves giving their own introduction and observed the changes in their speech and body language which was an interesting way of looking at oneself and identifying the areas to be worked on. After knowing few rules of effective presentation, topics were prepared by participants in a team to understand the importance of Time Management. As Mr. Pramod Palekar had rightly pointed out that the impact of oral communication is less so it may become a challenge for the presenter to encourage the audience to be interactive so that the retain power can be increased. So factor like voice modulation, gestures and postures can help the presenter to make his or her presentation viable and understood by his/her audience.

Activity Name: FDP on Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles

Date: 7th May 2018 Time: 10 AM to 4 PM

He also added the presentation changes when performing in a team. As team presentation needs interpersonal skills tend to be able to work well in a team or group and with other people more generally. Interpersonal skills are therefore vital in all areas of life at work, in education and socially.

Through awareness of how you interact with others, and with practice, you can improve your interpersonal skills. During a group presentation, interaction and discussion is at its peak because we can learn and adapt to new things and learning.

"Effective lecturers combine the talents of scholar, writer, producer, comedian, showman, and teacher in ways that contribute to student learning."

Wilbert J. McKeachie, Teaching Tips

The above statement truly justifies today's role as a teacher. A compelling educator is a phenomenal communicator and along these lines ponders enhancing his or her introduction abilities. A standout amongst the most vital parts of imparting is molding both substance and style to fit your group of onlookers. In the classroom, on the off chance that you can't impart in a way that is both understandable and intriguing to your understudies, their learning will be significantly diminished. Dr. Palekar added that to strengthen one's presentation skills focus should be given on:

- Verbal Communication
- Non-verbal communication (gestures, posture, eye contact, voice modulation)
- Visual Aids
- Meaningful organization of Content
- Experience and Examples
- Links and References

The second session ended with an overwhelming response where Mr. Pramod Palekar concluded the importance of communication and information process in the teaching field.

He explained to the participants how to use body language and eye contact in the classroom while teaching the subject. Also the participants informed that how to manage classroom with moulding and adapting themselves with the changing requirements and needs of the students.

Day 3 (8th May 2018) Session 1 : The Role of a Teacher as an Instruction Specialist

Dr. Abhijit Phadnis is a Mumbai university rank-holder in the B.Com. (1982) examination. He is a national rank holder in final examinations of ICWA (1983), CA (1984), CS (1987) and CFA India (1989) examinations. After work spanning 6 years, in 2009, he was awarded a PhD by the Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay. His thesis titled 'Factors influencing investments into Indian states' has been published as a monograph by a German academic publisher and is available for sale globally on www.amazon.com.

Dr. Phadnis has created a unique e-learning solution to learn accounting, costing & finance which will revolutionize learning of these subjects.

He has written a serial of 49 episodes which has been animated and has excited the corporate world with a new way of teaching accounting, costing & finance.

As the session focused on "Teacher as an instructor", Dr. Abhijit Phadnis is the right resource person to highlight the points of an instructor as preciseness and concreteness in any message can bring out the essence of understanding among students. Dr. Phadnis focused on few of the roles of teachers as instructors to have effectiveness in learning.

- Realities of Today
- Learning Needs
- Hygiene factors in Facilitation
- Learning Principles
- Opportunities

He mentioned that learning is a personal agenda. Now a day we all are busy creating facades that increases stress which is mostly self-created. There is explosion of information everywhere which makes us confused and anxious. Students need learning, unlearning and then relearning so that retaining of information does not become a task but an activity.

Today's education is information oriented which must have genuine value, relevant and scale to customization innovation. He interestingly quoted, "Teaching should be changed to facilitation." Participation, opinion, involvement and ownership is a must to buy in terms of teaching learning activity. He also added that the most basic learning need is completion of certification and competitive spirit in handling groups.

Hygiene factors has been clearly explained which are also one of the basic needs of learning process. Factors like customer focus, right environment, self-motivator and right strategy is required to meet the current needs of learning. As an instructor, empathy for learners plays a vital role so as customer orientation. Knowledge upgradation is only possible who teach and share and the willingness to learn and improve is required for one to evolve. What is read may not be retained, what is heard is retained a longer but what is thought remains for the real long term. This mantra should be implemented as an instructor to make learning and sharing a two-way process. Dr. Phadnis has made the session interesting by introducing the participants to a concept of memorizing to refresh the learning. The method is:

- 1 day
- 1 week
- 1 month
- 6 months

Examples and exercises should be given where practical based applications of learning should be given to connect the theory to connect with the real life application. Experimental learning should be adapted to give a new direction to learning and instructing. The session ended with a discussion on available opportunities provided to students that includes innovative ways of using multimedia, projects can be given on "you tube", role plays can be a good source of learning for application and caselets, industrial visits to co-create learning, practical demonstrations and quizzes.

Day 3 (8th May 2018) Session 2 : The Role of a Teacher as an Effective Presenter and Communicator

The objective of a classroom introduction is to help you in viably passing on data in a way that permits understudies (or their folks) to recollect what you said. Tragically, for a few, the introduction turns into a brace, and they start to depend on the slides to recount their story, instead of to enable them to recount the story. A teacher's utilization of visual guides in educating, as different components of the showing practice, ought to be consistent with the educator's general way to deal with instructing. Continuing with the topic of Effective Presentation, participants had an exchange of rules, necessities, and methods on preparing slides which is considered as one of the most popular visual aid of new generation learning. Few rules which participants have found useful are as follows:

- Keep the content and slides simple
- Limit bullet points and text
- Limit transitions and animations
- Use high quality graphics
- Use charts and tables wherever necessary
- Use colours well
- Use Video and audio

Apart from these basic rules, it had also been shared with the participants that there is nothing wrong or right when using any form of aids. Most importantly we need to remember is that the presenter is the real presentation and not the slides which have been showed to the audience. The purpose of this FDP on "Effective Presentation" was a rich experience as it was a collaboration of knowledge, sharing, implementing and enhancing the teaching learning skills.

The fifth session concluded pronouncing words correctly also feedback from the participants on the programme.

Date: 5th to 11th May 2018 Time: 10 AM to 4 PM

Day 4 (9th May 2018) – The Role of a Teacher as a Researcher

Day 4 of the Faculty Development Programme on Different Roles of a Teacher focused on the role of a teacher as a researcher. Dr. Binilkumar, Assistant Professor of Economics, was the resource person for the session. The resource person was introduced by the Principal, Dr. Rohini Kelkar and a bio was given by Prof. Ranjit Singh Anand. Teachers who are actively interested in research often attempt to involve themselves dynamically and creatively in academics. They improve classroom teaching and also play an important role in decoding the relevance of the curriculum to the learners. Research is now inseparable from education. Additionally, teachers who are involved in research are preferred and are seen as more capable and qualified. Thus it is necessary for teachers to hone their research skills and in turn, teach students to view knowledge with an inquisitive mind and thereby view learning as fundamental to self-development.

"Knowledge generated by research is the basis of sustainable development, which requires that knowledge be placed at the service of development, be converted into applications, and be shared to ensure widespread benefits," said Mary-Louise Kearney, Director of the UNESCO Forum on Higher Education, Research and Knowledge ("The Importance of Research and its Impact on Education", University of Skovde).

Activity Name: FDP on Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles

Dr. Binilkumar Sreeram spoke on various aspects of research and explained important research terminologies. He began the session by asking the members in the audience their research interests. He then proceeded to explain that research is the systematic investigation into and study of materials and sources in order to establish facts and reach new conclusions. It is vital to invest in research to improve ourselves because it enables us to look at different issues and topics through varied perspectives and at the same time, improves our analytic ability.

He began the lecture with the fundamental question: what is data? Data and information are seen as interchangeable terms and concepts. Data is the starting point of research and all conclusions derived are from the existence of a certain kind of data. In research, data is measured, collected and reported, and analyzed, whereupon it can be visualized using graphs, images or other analysis tools. Therefore all research starts with data collection. Gathering data can be accomplished through a primary source (the researcher is the first person to obtain the data) or a secondary source (the researcher obtains the data that has already been collected by other sources, such as data disseminated in a scientific journal). Quantitative data is that can be quantified and verified, and is amenable to statistical manipulation. Quantitative data defines whereas qualitative data describes. Qualitative data is information about qualities; information that can't actually be measured. It approximates and characterizes but does not measure the attributes, characteristics, properties, etc., of a thing or phenomenon. There are other types of data as well. Categorical data is that which can be divided into groups. This is data that can be organized into mutually exclusive categories. Categorical data is usually qualitative. However, quantitative data can also be put into categories.

There are two different ways to classify data based on the possible values observed. These two types are discrete and continuous data. Discrete data is information that can be categorized into a classification. Discrete data is based on counts. Only a finite number of values is possible, and the values cannot be subdivided meaningfully. Data is continuous if there's no clear separation between possible values. Discrete data take particular values, while continuous data are not restricted to separate values. Discrete data can take on only integer values whereas continuous data can take on any value. Structured data is data that has been organized into a formatted repository, typically a database, so that its elements can be made addressable for more effective processing and analysis. Research involves conversion of data to information and consequently, to knowledge. That is the sole and fundamental purpose of research.

Dr. Sreeraman also elaborated on primary and secondary data, the meaning, the advantages and disadvantages of both. Data collected by the investigator himself or herself for a specific purpose is primary data. Data collected by someone else for some other purpose (but being utilized by the investigator for another purpose) is understood as secondary data. He mentioned examples of secondary data sources, NSSO, Annual Reports of Companies, RBI data being some of them. Primary data has several advantages.

Since they are collected by the investigator himself or herself, such data is raw and the investigator often collect data in a manner that benefits the research effort. Primary data is also the most updated data available to the researcher or investigator. And therefore is more reliable than secondary data. However, primary data has to be collected by investing a lot of time and money. It is thus a time-consuming process. An appropriate sample size and method of collecting pertinent data has to first be identified before gathering data. The behaviour of the respondents also affect the research process. Sometimes the respondents might not respond at the desired time and might also tamper with the data by not filling it on their own. Secondary data also has its own advantages and limitations. One of the main advantages of secondary data is that it saves time and is comparatively less expensive than primary data. It is easier to access and obtain. It also acts as a frame of reference for the investigator. However, since it is collected by a third party for another research purpose, it might not be reliable. With the passage of time, the data might not be updated and thus has a short relevance span as compared to primary data. At times, it can distort the research too. It can also raise issues of authenticity and copyright.

Many instruments can be used for gathering data. They include questionnaire, telephone, email and facsimile, and interviews. Research methods can be the survey method or observation method. Survey is used to collect quantitative information about items in a population. Surveys are used in different areas for collecting the data even in public and private sectors. A survey may be conducted in the field by the researcher. The respondents are contacted by the research person personally, telephonically or through mail. This method takes a lot of time, efforts and money but the data collected are of high accuracy, current and relevant to the topic. Observation is a complex research method because it often requires the researcher to play a number of roles and to use a number of techniques; including her/his five senses, to collect data. The observer puts himself in the actual situation and watch carefully. On the basis of his knowledge, skills and experience he collects the data without contacting the respondents. The results of observation entirely depend on the talents of the researcher. This method can be used only by expert persons in the research.

Activity Name: FDP on Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles

Date: 9th May 2018 Time: 10 AM to 4 PM

Venue- Y 101, Y-Block

Observation methods have been developed with the objective of 'observing people in their natural setting - as they go about their everyday lives. Observation methods can overcome some of the criticisms of quantitative research methods (Validity, bias etc.) and can be useful when its subject can't provide information, or can only provide inaccurate information.

Dr. Sreeram then explained the Linear Research Process. Research can be seen as a series of linked activities moving from a beginning to an end. Research usually begins with the identification of a problem followed by formulation of research questions or objectives. Proceeding from this the researcher determines how best to answer these questions and so decides what information to collect, how it will be collected, and how it will be analysed in order to answer the research question. Regardless of the route taken subsequently, research should start with the problem and the research questions. The steps involved are theory, hypothesis, operationalization, analysis, data collection, sampling and interpretation.

It is important to formulate a research design. A research design is the set of methods and procedures used in collecting and analysing measures of the variables specified in the research problem research. The design of a study defines the study type (descriptive, correlation, semi-experimental, experimental, review, meta-analytic) and sub-type (e.g., descriptive-longitudinal case study), research problem, hypotheses, independent and dependent variables, experimental design, and, if applicable, data collection methods and a statistical analysis plan. Research design is the framework that has been created to find answers to research questions. It is a systematic approach that a researcher uses to conduct a scientific study. It is the overall synchronization of identified components and data resulting in a plausible outcome. A research design is an arrangement of conditions or collections. Types of research designs include Descriptive (e.g., case-study, naturalistic observation, survey), Correlational (e.g., case-control study, observational study), Semi-experimental (e.g., field experiment, quasi-experiment), Experimental (experiment with random assignment), Review (literature review, systematic review) and Meta-analytic (meta-analysis).

After discussing types of research design, Dr. Sreeraman expounded on data collection and data entry. Data collection is a process of collecting information from all the relevant sources to find answers to the research problem, test the hypothesis and evaluate the outcomes. Once data collection has been completed and checked, the process of data entry and cleaning starts.

In the discussion on sampling, he spoke of two types: Probability and Non-Probability sampling. Probability sampling is a sampling technique wherein the samples are gathered in a process that gives all the individuals in the population equal chances of being selected. Probability sampling uses random sampling techniques to create a sample.

There are different types of random sampling. Simple random sampling is a completely random method of selecting subjects. These can include assigning numbers to all subjects and then using a random number generator to choose random numbers. Classic ball and urn experiments are another example of this process (assuming the balls are sufficiently mixed). The members whose numbers are chosen are included in the sample. Stratified Random Sampling involves splitting subjects into mutually exclusive groups and then using simple random sampling to choose members from groups. Systematic Sampling means that you choose every “nth” participant from a complete list. Cluster Random Sampling is a way to randomly select participants from a list that is too large for simple random sampling. Multi-Stage Random sampling uses a combination of techniques.

Non-probability sampling is a sampling technique where the samples are gathered in a process that does not give all the individuals in the population equal chances of being selected. Subjects in a non-probability sample are usually selected on the basis of their accessibility or by the purposive personal judgment of the researcher. The limitation of the non-probability sampling method is that an unknown proportion of the entire population was not sampled. This entails that the sample may or may not represent the entire population accurately. Therefore, the results of the research cannot be used in generalizations pertaining to the entire population. Non-probability sampling also has different types. Convenience Sampling is probably the most common of all sampling techniques. With convenience sampling, the samples are selected because they are accessible to the researcher. Subjects are chosen simply because they are easy to recruit. This technique is considered easiest, cheapest and least time consuming. Consecutive sampling is very similar to convenience sampling except that it seeks to include all accessible subjects as part of the sample. This non-probability sampling technique can be considered as the best of all non-probability samples because it includes all subjects that are available that makes the sample a better representation of the entire population. Quota sampling is a non-probability sampling technique wherein the researcher ensures equal or proportionate representation of subjects depending on which trait is considered as basis of the quota. Judgmental sampling is more commonly known as purposive sampling. In this type of sampling, subjects are chosen to be part of the sample with a specific purpose in mind. With judgmental sampling, the researcher believes that some subjects are more fit for the research compared to other individuals. This is the reason why they are purposively chosen as subjects. Snowball sampling is usually done when there is a very small population size. In this type of sampling, the researcher asks the initial subject to identify another potential subject who also meets the criteria of the research. The limitation of using a snowball sample is that it is hardly representative of the population.

Dr. Sreeraman explained that research is a rewarding process and enhances both teaching and analytic abilities. The session ended with a vote of thanks presented by Dr. Pashmeen Kaur Anand.

Day 4 (9th May 2018) Session 2 : The Role of a Teacher as an Instruction Specialist

Vidyalanakar School of Information Technology, as part of its Faculty Development Program, organized a session on 'C++ with Animation and Navigation solutions & Algorithms' by Dr. Abhiram Ranade.

Dr. Abhiram Ranade completed his B. Tech in Electrical Engineering from IIT Bombay in 1981. He completed his Doctorate in Computer Science from Yale University in 1989. Dr. Ranade has worked as an Assistant Professor at University of California, Berkeley during 1988-95.

The entire session revolved around the theme 'Role of teacher as an instruction specialist'. The session comprised of two parts viz. C++ with Animation and Navigation solutions & Algorithms. The first part included detailed talk on the following topics : what is programming, A conjecture: why programming is difficult , Pedagogy for overcoming the difficulty, A teaching tool simpleCpp, the Books and Experiences.

Date: 9th May 2018 Time: 10 AM to 4 PM
Venue- Y 101, Y-Block

Dr. Ranade highlighted the important challenges that the students face related to programming. He observed that the students can execute complex algorithms but cannot write programs based on simple algorithm. The suggestions included that the teaching should include how to translate their informal knowledge of manual computation into an algebraic description as needed for writing program. In the process Dr. Ranade developed a teaching tool called SimpleCpp, effective in creating 2Dimensional coordinate graphics on touch screen devices like phone. The commands used for running the code in SimpleCpp included keywords like repeat, forward, right, left etc which are easier from the point of view of students to remember and relate. Teachers can also grab student's attention by running a complicated design created using few simple lines of code.

The second part of the session included talk on "Navigation solution and algorithm". The basis for research and algorithm creation is explained by Dr. Ranade with a simple example of commuting using a delay prone bus. He helped us think in a direction so that an optimal solution is proposed and mathematically deducted.

The takeaway from the session is the vision on how to work in the research area and to teach programming by concentrating on the solution of simple day to day activity. Faculty members were overwhelmed by the immense knowledge Dr. Ranade conducted the session with ease.

Day 5 & 6(10th & 11th May 2018) : THE ROLE OF A TEACHER AS A LEADER

Day 5 and 6 explored the role of a teacher as a leader. The resource people for the session were Girish Patwardhan and Dr. Mangesh Karandikar. The three sessions of three hours each were a strategic blend of activities and learning. The inclusion of various energizers kept the participants on constant alert and both days helped to learn the importance of various leadership styles. The participants were informed that there is a need to understand the distinct difference between a boss and a leader. A boss is more of an authoritarian role. A leader on the other hand is all about motivation, guiding and involving all team members to achieve their best potential. Thus the sessions focused on how to be an effective team leader and thus lead students as a guide and not as a mere lecturer.

The session began with an energizer where participants were given a sheet of paper with qualities and they had to identify which of their colleagues possess the qualities after confirming the same. This activity made the participants realize that though they work together, they do not really know much about particular qualities of each other. The objective of the activity was to understand the importance of networking. It is important to constantly form networks and understand those in your networks because one never really knows who might be of help at a given time. Networking is crucial to avail of opportunities and to learn new things. Having a well-established network must become an important part of our lives as it is necessary for self-upliftment and development. The activity was succeeded by a discussion on de-westernising communication in India. This was done through equating the teacher in the classroom as a performer and the learners also as performers of their respective role. In this regard, understanding emotions in performing arts was studied through the rasa theory explained in Natya Shastra, an ancient text on performing arts, valued in Sanskrit theatre, by Bharat Muni. In the Rasa theory, there is a mention of nine rasas and their corresponding bhavas. This was used in Sanskrit theatre to express distinct emotions in an effective manner. The bhavas can be strategically used to express a certain sentiment in the classroom too to incite a desired response. Understanding bhavas in students in various instances also helps the teacher to react effectively. This was followed by an activity where the participants had to complete a task under conditions and every task had to be done in a unique manner. The task was to run from one end of the room to the other without walking and letting the footwear to touch the ground. The participants were also not allowed to copy another's way of completing the task. Though it came across as nearly impossible, the participants learnt that they were actually able to figure out different and unique ways to complete the task. The objective was to understand that there is always a solution to a problem. Additionally there is always more than one way to solve a problem. One is often discouraged in the face of challenges but through creativity and positive thinking, problems can be overcome and success, achieved. Creativity is crucial to problem-solving.

Post lunch break, the participants were taught about rubrics in grading. Setting criteria for assessment of assignment and course work is known as rubrics and it works to systematize the assessment process. At the same time it also works as a fair way to evaluate assignments and eliminates subjectivity, thereby enabling equal evaluation for all assignments. The participants were also told about the success of using rubrics by the resource people. The participants were then divided into groups and they formulated their own rubrics for a hypothetical assignment.

An activity on team building was undertaken. The thirty participants were divided into two groups. Each group was given a mat and had to stay on the mat. They had to flip the mat without getting off it. It elucidated the importance of strategy the ability to look at every task, no matter the difficulty, as possible. It also demonstrated the importance of mutual support in the team without which the task suffers.

Activity Name: FDP on Preparing a Teacher for Different Roles

Venue- Y 101, Y-Block

In the activity that ensued, participants were divided into three teams and were provided with six threads and five elastic bands. They were also to shift a jar filled with water from point A to point B. Both points were apart by a considerable distance. Additionally around both points a space was demarcated which must not be trespassed by any part of the body. The participants realised the importance of strategizing to achieve a complex task. But what was the most important lesson was the need to distribute work to avoid confusion. As the famous axiom goes, 'two many cooks spoil the broth'. The teams realised that when all members started to shout instructions, it led to confusion. In case of one team, it lead to a hurried failure. In another team, they decided to pause their efforts, distribute roles and then carry forward with the task. The ones assigned to instruct were able to clearly help the ones carrying out the task to navigate successfully. The team members also realised that they mustn't give up hope and to keep trying to succeed. Another team realised that they couldn't complete the task because they failed to strategize effectively. Thus the activity demonstrated the importance of wise distribution of work, motivation and strategizing.

Day 5 ended with the screening of a video on teamwork. The resource persons had recorded a short film on how ants work to carry food over various obstacles. Every ant worked in unison to complete the task and performed their respective roles diligently which allowed for the successful completion of the task. Proper distribution of work among team members leads to increased productivity in the workplace. Productivity in the workplace is probably the most important aspect in managing students and in the case of committees, team members. You need to make sure that every cog in the machine is well oiled to distribute properly the amount and difficulty of tasks each staff member must handle. A very important aspect in maximizing productivity is proper division of work among all of the members of your team. After all, team management is the ability of an individual or an organization to administer and coordinate a group of individuals to perform a task.

Day 6 also involved enthusiastic participation and engagement with the topic on teacher as a leader. The participants were divided into two teams. In each team the members had to stand in a circle, hold hands and stand facing outwards. They had to turn themselves to face inwards without letting go of the members' hands and without crossing their hands. The teams had to strategize in order to complete the task and once again the participants learnt the need to strategize subject to limiting conditions. Having a clear and focused strategy is critically important to the success of any team or organization. It is important to have efficient and effective business strategies in place to accomplish complex tasks.

Another interesting activity followed this. Participants were split into five groups and each group nominated a leader. The leaders were separated from their groups and given specific resources to achieve a specific task which was unique to each leader. The leaders returned to their respective groups and started to direct the team members to complete the task given to the leader. However, the leaders were immediately instructed to switch to a new team. Most leaders face resistance from the new teams as the leaders had to convince them to adapt to a new strategy and task. The leaders were again shifted to a new team and had to convince the new teammates to adapt to their task. The teams that adapted to the new leaders and were co-operative managed to successfully and smoothly complete the task compared to those that continued to resist. This activity was important as it demonstrated that it is not the people, the relationship between the members and the leader, or the pride of the team members that is important. Task is priority and work comes first over pride and personal preferences. Professionalism and adaptability is crucial for successful team efforts. Additionally, the task also demonstrated the ability of a leader to connect to a new team and get along well with them in order to get work done.

Venue- Y 101, Y-Block

The activity was succeeded by a discussion on making teaching interesting in classrooms. Learners are not really inclined to learn and often feel that learning is thrust upon them. The success of the teacher then is to guide them to self-imbibe an inclination to learn. Learning needs to be made simple and easy to be enjoyable. All institutes now tend towards student-centric approach to education and in this approach, the need to teach students takes precedence over the need to educate and guide. The resource people also informed that today's students are born in the digital age and the teachers, born before the digital age, are actually digital immigrants. Thus students tend to connect more to teaching methods that use digital methods than the conventional classroom teaching. Often digitalization of education is enforced as a self-study method. Amalgamating it to routine teaching might just work to bring students closer to studying. Students are often discouraged to use gadgets in the institutional space. Perhaps by allowing controlled usage, it could in fact make classroom teaching more productive. What is digital is good now and not something that should be seen as a hindrance to education. This will help prevent distancing the students from learning and in fact make learning of various topics, theoretical and practical, enjoyable. It also allows them to involve themselves in the learning process and not be passive receptors which is what often induces indifference in learners. Various tools are available for the educators due to today's face-paced and changing world and educators must use such tools to maximize productivity and enhance both teaching and learning. A teaching aid is a tool used by teachers to help learners improve reading and other skills, illustrate or reinforce a skill, fact, or idea, and relieve anxiety, fears, or boredom and must be used to supplement routine teaching.

This was followed by an activity that was perhaps the most challenging of all. The participants were divided into three teams and each team nominated a leader. Each leader was given a tent and equipment required to pitch the tent. The leaders returned to their teams to find the members blindfolded. The task was to instruct the blindfolded members to pitch the tent. It was quite challenging as the members had to rely solely on the instructions and it was also challenging for the leader to give minute instructions to pitch the tent. Interestingly, none of the participants had ever pitched a tent before so it was quite a challenging task. In this activity the members realised the importance of trust in their leader and also the importance to be specific and patient as leaders. The members also realised the importance of being patients as team members and not being too hasty to complete a task.

The participants discussed the lessons they learned in all activities with the resource persons and analysed various aspects of leadership and teamwork. It was indeed a productive two-day session on leadership and even helped unwilling leaders realise their potential to guide teams.

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES OF PERSPECTIVE PLAN:

Institute Perspective plan helps in formalizing the college mission, Vision, Goals & objective. They serve as a guiding light for the future. During the past decade education has gone through vast changes. Today's education demands for giving students the skills & confidence that they need to succeed in this new world which thereby increased the number of institutes significantly. This has resulted in an intense competition for high calibre students and faculty. Thus, in this volatile & variable environment it is important for an institute to plans & priorities the quantifiable objectives or goals and to assess the success of the defined metrics and periodically tracking & reviewing them. This will enable the firm to respond to the new challenges & pursue emergent opportunities. It is a participatory strategy that helps the organization to assign resources in accordance with the goals set out in the Perspective plan.

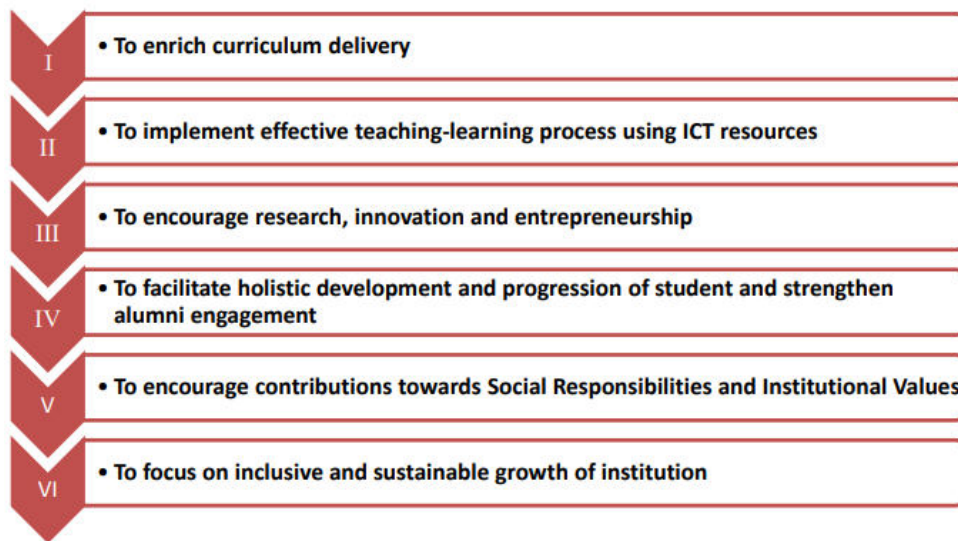

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) of the college plays a proactive role and is involved with various aspects of institutional strategy making and planning process, as per needs and vision of the institution. IQAC has undertaken the task of designing a Perspective Plan for the period of three years commencing from academic year 2016-17 to academic year 2018-19, keeping in view of quality indicators of different criteria determined by NAAC and the various strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and challenges of the institution.

The present Perspective Plan principally based on-

- The NAAC guidelines
- Vision and Mission statement
- Quality Policy
- SWOC Analysis
- Recommendations of NAAC
- Inputs from stakeholders

OBJECTIVES:

Keeping in view of the Vision, Mission, Quality Policy and SWOC analysis of the institution a set of following objectives are identified to be achieved through this perspective plan over the next 3 years:

FORMATION PERSPECTIVE PLAN PROCESS:

The Perspective Plan (2016-2019) has been prepared by the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) with active assistance of the Criterion-VI Sub-Committee. During the IQAC meeting (Jan 2016) the steering committee for Perspective plan, consisting of Director, Principal, Vice Principal, the department heads and all other stakeholders was constituted. In the preparation of the Perspective Plan, the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) of the college has taken initiatives to obtain Inputs from all stakeholders viz, the management, Principal, the faculty, the administrative staff, students of the college, the Alumni Association of the college, the parents and the peer colleagues. Stakeholders' expectations, institute's vision, mission and SWOC are also considered as a base for formulation of the perspective plan. The entire process has been envision keeping in view of the quality parameters laid down by NAAC for holistic up-gradation of a higher educational institution. The mode of execution shall be mainly through IQAC interventions, in a phased manner, to be decided from time to time as per resolutions taken in the IQAC Core Committee meetings.

PERSPECTIVE PLAN 2016-2019:

Objective I: To enrich curriculum delivery

The main purpose of curriculum is the Holistic development of the students. Institution has the mechanism for well-planned curriculum delivery and enrichment to impart high quality education. Institute focuses on preparation of the Academic-Activity Calendar and Academic Administration Plan (AAP) and aims at designing various beyond syllabus activities for Curriculum Delivery. FY ORIENTATION PROGRAM

Orientation Program for all FY students

Date of Activity	10 th July 2017
Venue Auditorium	Auditorium, M-413, M-501

Orientation programme is generally organized for the new student as New College or course can cause much anxiety to the students. They may have questions like-

How would my college be? Will I make any friends? Will I be able to locate my class? Whom do I ask if I have a question? New students' orientation program is designed to guide students in answering all of these questions prior to the beginning of classes. Students are given an overview of the complete realm of the college life. Introducing students to college life requires presenting as full a view as possible of all the college has to offer. Keeping this in mind, VSIT had organized an Orientation programme for all the first year students (belonging to all streams) on 10th July 2017, to familiarize with every aspect of the college and the course. A comprehensive view was given through power point presentation by various teams to each course. The program ran parallel at Auditorium, M101, and M413 for different courses. At the outset the history of Vidyalankar and its Founder Shri C.S Deshpande was presented, whose mission and vision was to prepare students globally by developing their overall personality through various activities. A team of teachers gave an in-depth information of the various professional courses run by the Institute viz: B.SC (Information Technology), Bachelor of Management Studies, Bachelor of Commerce in Finance & Accounting, Banking & Insurance, Financial Markets and Post Graduate courses in Information Technology (M.SC IT), M.F.M M.COM (To run these professional courses successfully VSIT provides the following facilities: 1) Excellent Library facilities which includes OPACQ (Online search under Title, author, & subjects). 2) Good and healthy food by clean canteens and Vending Machines. 3) WI-FI Campus to access VSIT Live a forum to interact with students ACADEMICS: Academics play a pivotal role in any Educational Institution. The TEAM Vidyalankar threw light on the following aspects, such as The Semester based credit system, Details of Examination pattern with its Internal and External examination system and Evaluation pattern. Facility of additional coaching to the advanced learners as well as slow learners. Organization of interdisciplinary Guest Lectures to widen the knowledge. Though Academics play a pivotal role the spokes of a pivot are equally important to keep the wheel running. The spokes of academics include: Co-curricular activities, Extra-curricular activities and Cultural Activities. CO-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES: The co-curricular activity of VSIT focuses on research. It provides a research platform to present innovative ideas for both students as well as teachers. V-SEARCH is a research conference meant purely for the students whereas VCMT is a two-day National Level Interdisciplinary Conference both for students as well as for faculty members. In addition to this VSIT has various publications viz :

- Vector: IT is a quarterly publication of Vidyalankar in collaboration with DNA Newspaper.
